RACING GOSSIP.

Green B. Morris is one of the old school of turfmen a school that has but few members left at the present time, and has owned as many good horses in his time as falls to the lot of most men to own. As a trainer he has long been acknowledged as one of the best in the country, and more than one big stake has gone to the credit of his stable only because his horse was the best conditioned animal on that occasion, and not because he had really the best horse in the race.

Green's reticence regarding his horses and their chances and his ability to keep his own secrets have contributed in no small way to his success, though these same characteristics have served to make him somewhat unpopular among certain knights of the pencil, with whom he has been thrown in contact.

The first time I ever met the veteran was along in the early 80's, says a turf gossip. He was then at New Orleans with his stable, and one morning bright and early I ran up against him when making my rounds, and asked him how Apollo was doing. Apollo at that time was the tip for the Kentucky Derby, and the only horse that was looked upon by good judges as having even an outside chance of beating Runnymede, a colt that was being especially prepared by the Dwyers to carry off the blue ribbon of Kentucky.

"Ain't no 'count," the old man told me. "Ain't no 'count, and he never could win no Derby if I started him, and so don't 'spose I shall. Some fools think he's a right smart hoss, but he ain't."

Later on that same day I met Charley Pettin-gill, who was then campaigning a stable, among the members of which were such good ones as Fair Count and Queen Bess, and I told him what Morris had said. Pettin-gill laughed loud and long, as he remarked: "That's just Green all over. Let him alone, and the first thing you know he will give a tip on the race without your asking."

As the days went by I saw a good deal more of Green and learned to like him in spite of his apparently gruff ways. The night before he shipped from the Crescent City to Louisville, meeting him in a down town resort, he said: The colt's doing right well, and ef nothin' happens he'll go to the post Derby day. You might have a little bet on him, cause ef I start him, 'nd I'm mor'n likely to, et'll take a right smooth loss to get away from him at the wire.

Well, Apollo did go to the post and won, much to the astonishment of Runnymede's backers, and that I had a small bet on him goes without saying.

The veteran's first bid for the American Derby race at Washington Park was made with Favor and had both day and track been good it is more than probable that he would have been returned the winner instead of Volante. His second essay was with Strathmeath, and then success crowned his efforts. That Strathmeath was not the best horse in the race Mr. Morris has time and time again admitted, but says he: "He was the best hoss that day, and that's how he came to get the money." The biggest disappointment that he ever owned was doubtless Sallie, a daughter of the famous Miss Woodford, and by Salvador, a king in his own right. For this fellow he paid a big price as a yearling and that she never earned her keep is a matter of history. Mr. Morris has had his share of the ups and downs incident to a turf career, and now that he is getting into the sere and yellow leaf is entitled to the rest and ease that he has earned.

Dr. E. F. McLean's yearlings have been less than happily named as follows:

Regulator, b. c, by Ben Strome—Craftie.
Tarleton, b. c, by Blue Tyes—Pericolor.
Jackanapes, b. c, by Leonatus—Belle of Runnymede.
Cornercracker—Br. c, by Portland—Claretta.
Wachusett, ch. c, by Sir Dixon—Nina Archer.
Moray, ch. c, by Blue Eyes—Money Musk.
Escapade, b. f, by Blue Eyes—Mandolin.
Carmelita, b. f, by Sir Dixon—Villette.
Magdalena, b. f, by Pirate of Penzance—Julia W.
Rotha, b. f, by Deceiver—Zulite.
Revoke, br. f, by Sir Dixon—Adele.
Pleasant Hours, b. f, by Farandole—Mrs. Chubbs.

ST. LOUIS FORM CHARTS.

DAILY RACING FORM presents a table of the races at South Side Park, St. Louis, this morning. Some few days of back form will be published tomorrow for a foundation. The track is one of the so called "outlaw" concerns. But FORM's readers want its news and for that reason such news is published. Hereafter, too, the South Side Park entries will be tabled, indexed and printed daily. The best of the so called western outlaw horses are racing at South Side Park. The purses are from $100 up with handicaps of $200 and $300.

NOTES OF THE TURF.

The Coulter string at Frisco is not nearly ready and old Redskin's ankle was wrenched in shipment. The horses will begin to race in ten days or so.

No less than three high class turfmen at San Francisco in personal letters to the editor of DAILY RACING FORM, deplore the denomination of Referee Earp as a horseman and declare his decision against Fitzsimmons to be a piece of prearranged villiany. All three know the fighting game well—far better than Earp.

Foreign Star Events of 1896.

The chief European racing pieces of 1897 are scheduled to be run as follows:
Lincolnshire Handicap..... March 23
Liverpool Grand National..... March 26
